

The world you know is _____. It is built on _____, carefully designed to comfort you. You live as a _____, living in a _____, eating _____, without question. But something feels _____. The room goes silent. In front of you sits a _____, quietly humming, relaxed. It begins, "You've felt it your whole life, _____." He then offers, "The blue choice lets you return to the _____ you know. The red choice shows you the true _____. Which will it be?" The screen glitches, you _____, and reach out. You choose _____. The system makes it clear: There is no _____ back.

Submit

Brent Park
brepark@ucdavis.edu